

Proteinase K [recombinant]

Proteinase K is a serine protease, it can be inhibited with phenylmethanesulfonyl fluoride, which is a kind of a protease inhibitor and it could be used to digest various proteins. It is also used in various common molecular biology, cell biology and other related applications, such as genomic DNA extraction, enzyme digestion and removal, etc.

Catalog No.	50169460
Size	500mg / 1g
Product Category	Nucleic Acid Isolation
Storage/Stability	-20°C/1 year
Shipping	Gel Packs

www.realgenelabs.com

For Research Use only